

After Election Integrity Blog with title Environmental Social Governance (ESG)

EPOCH TV

✓ Saved 23 388 Live Chat

Is ESG Illegal?: Kevin Stocklin on the New 'High Priests of Society' Transforming Corporate America

Views 91.2K • September-16-2023

“The genius of the ESG movement—and we have to recognize how clever this movement actually is—is they are able to find the pressure points. And so they’re able to find who can we go to to essentially get leverage over these companies.”

Read More

Popular

American Thought Leaders

Views 58.7K • September-16-2023

“The genius of the ESG movement—and we have to recognize how clever this movement actually is—is they are able to find the pressure points. And so they’re able to find who can we go to to essentially get leverage over these companies.”

In this episode, I sit down with Kevin Stocklin, writer and producer of “The Shadow State,” an EpochTV documentary that investigates the industry of environmental, social, and corporate governance, also known as ESG.

“If you’re a farmer, you pretty much have to dance to their tune. And they have gone out and they’ve said to their farmers as a result of the ESG movement, ‘This is what we want you to do. This is how we want you to produce. These are the processes that we want you to follow if you’re going to sell to us,’” says Mr. Stocklin. “It’s the banking industry, it’s the asset management industry, and it’s the insurance industry. And if you can get these folks on board, you can control everything else.”

How does the ESG mechanism work? Who are the players involved? And is there a way to push back?

“We’re starting to see the power that private industry has to control us in a way that, in the West at least, the governments legally can’t do,” says Mr. Stocklin.

He explains how ESG is both an industry and an ideology. Put simply, it is a way to use consumer money to impose a progressive agenda on the private sector in America.

“Even though it’s our money that’s funding the whole thing, they basically are the ones that have the votes, and they’re able to put pressure on companies to essentially do what they want them to do,” says Mr. Stocklin.

Subscribe

Latest Issues

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

Sign In | Newsletters

COVID Health Mind & Brain Environment Technology Space & Physics Video Podcasts Opinion nature

AUTOMOBILES

The EPA Wants Two Thirds of U.S. Car Sales to Be Electric by 2032

The Environmental Protection Agency has released draft regulations that set the stage for a huge transition to electric vehicles

By Jeff Tollefson, Nature magazine on April 12, 2023

THE EPOCH TIMES

READ THIS NEXT

AUTOMOBILES

Ninety Percent of U.S. Cars Must Be Electric by 2050 to Meet Climate Goals

David Iaconangelo and E&E News

FOSSIL FUELS

Electric Vehicle Adoption Not Happening Fast Enough to Meet Climate Goals

✓ Saved

132

1.2K

Live Chat

Is ESG Illegal?: Kevin Stocklin on the New 'High Priests of Society' Transforming Corporate America

American Thought Leaders

Views 220.7K • September-16-2023

[FULL TRANSCRIPT BELOW] “The genius of the ESG movement—and we have to recognize how clever this movement actually is—is they are able to find the pressure points. And so they’re able to find who can we go to to essentially get leverage over these companies.”

In this episode, I sit down with Kevin Stocklin, writer and producer of “The Shadow State,” an EpochTV documentary that investigates the industry of environmental, social, and corporate governance, also known as ESG.

“If you’re a farmer, you pretty much have to dance to their tune. And they have gone out and they’ve said to their farmers as a result of the ESG movement, ‘This is what we want you to do. This is how we want you to

